THE ICE ! UPPLY .- For some time past we have heard a great deal of the so called "ice famine," engineered undoubtedly by speculators toadvance the price, in order that they might be enabled to re-p s rich harvest from their recent purchases of the ice crop. The consequences have been that the consumers have had to pay dearly for this fictitions famine Investigations shows that there has not been that secreity that should warrant the very great increase in the price. The amount of ice harvested in Maine last winter was to exceed of any previous supply. On the Kannebec over slone, 800 000 tons were secured, which was more by 100 000 tons than was ever jut up on that stream in any single previous year, and we learn that the increase on other important rivers of the State, was nearly in the same proportion. These field seems to show that an advance in the price of ice is not founded on a short supply, but on specu-
